

Case Study

The recession was taking its toll on The Design House Restaurant, acceptcards helped them to save thousands of pounds.

Having carried out a review for The Design House acceptcards found they were paying high rates for both credit and debit card transactions with their existing provider. Once a full assessment of the business had been carried out acceptcards spoke to a number of alternative providers to secure better terms.

Within 3 weeks The Design House had a new facility with AIB Merchant Services and were able to reduce the charge for credit card transactions substantially, saving them thousands of pounds a year. The acceptcards team oversaw the switchover, ensuring there was no interruption to the business.

“ It had been a really tough year when acceptcards initially approached us, we were struggling and had been losing up to £3,000 a week as people cut back on dining out.

I was looking at various ways to reduce costs but hadn't even considered the possibility of saving money on card processing. acceptcards provided a professional, efficient service from start to finish.

They explained everything clearly in plain English, assisted with the application forms and we found the whole process to be very straightforward. Being able to cut these costs was a huge benefit and we saved a fortune.

I would urge any business that takes card payments to speak to them immediately ”
